

PROJECT FACT SHEET (20 FEB 04)

PROJECT: Dowagiac River Aquatic Ecosystem Restoration Project

DESCRIPTION: The Dowagiac River is a coldwater trout stream that was channelized 100 years ago. The channelization project straightened and deepened the entire river in Van Buren and Cass counties for the purpose of draining the Decatur Marsh. Now, a group called "Partnership for MEANDERS" is working on restoring river flow back to some of the old meanders that were abandoned by channelization and have asked the USACE to study the project under our Section 206 authority. The purpose of the project is to restore the original river channel south of M-62 in order to achieve the original flow, enhance aquatic and floodplain habitats, and improve the functioning of the river (specifically, its ability to handle sediment).
